

A Seat of Power, Repositioned.

THE ORTHANC

A 30-Story Landmark Class A Office Tower

A Treebeard Capital Investment Opportunity

THE OFFERING

Mithril Real Estate Advisors, as exclusive advisor to Treebeard Capital, is pleased to present The Orthanc — a ±365,000-square-foot Class A office tower commanding the secured ±500-acre Isengard campus at the Gap of Rohan. Offered at ₧168,000,000, a 6.25% going-in capitalization rate on in-place net operating income of approximately ₧10.5 million, The Orthanc represents a rare opportunity to acquire a fully stabilized, institutionally irreplaceable trophy at the strategic center of Middle-earth.

Raised by the masons of Gondor from a single seamless mass of Númenórean stone, the ±500-foot tower has stood for an Age without a structural repair, an envelope reserve, or a roof. It has weathered siege, flood, and several distinctly motivated efforts at demolition, and emerged each time without a scratch. There is no comparable inventory in the realm, and the means to build more departed these shores long ago.

THE REPOSITIONING

For most of its history, the tower served as the seat of power for the lands around it. Under its most recent prior owner, Saruman the White, the property was managed to a single-tenant industrial thesis — heavy on extraction, light on stewardship — that concluded, memorably, in a flood. Treebeard Capital acquired the asset out of the ensuing distress and executed a comprehensive repositioning: a full interior renovation across all thirty floors, complete restoration of the grounds and waterworks by Fangorn Landscaping, reactivation of the Palantír Network, and a curated amenity program anchored by The Merry Halfling and the Galenas lounge.

What comes to market today is the rarest profile in the realm — a turnkey, fully stabilized Class A trophy, 96% leased to a diversified, credit-backed roster on an 8.1-year weighted average lease term and anchored by Erebor Holdings. The hard work is done. The income is in place. Nothing remains but to take the chair.

INVESTMENT HIGHLIGHTS

I. Built to Last an Age.

The Orthanc's envelope is a single piece of indestructible Númenórean stone — fireproof, weatherproof, and structurally proven by both siege and flood. Ownership carries effectively no structural or envelope reserve, removing the single largest long-term capital line from the underwriting and protecting net cash flow across the entire hold.

II. The Crossroads of the Realm.

The campus commands the Gap of Rohan, the principal east–west corridor of Middle-earth, with direct access to the Great West Road and the Fords of Isen. A deep labor and logistics base in neighboring Rohan, the old-growth Fangorn preserve at the doorstep, and trophy-market adjacency to Lothlórien complete an address without peer.

III. A Turnkey, Stabilized Trophy.

Acquired out of distress and fully repositioned by Treebeard Capital, the asset delivers in-place, credit-backed cash flow with embedded mark-to-market upside as below-market leases roll to market. A clean ownership history begins here.

IV. Connectivity Without Equal.

The Palantír Network provides direct line-of-sight communication to every major seat of power in the realm. On-site, the Palantír Data Vault occupies the secured subterranean works — redundant, purpose-built, and impossible to surveil from beyond the Ring.

V. A Secured Campus with an Age of Runway.

The ±500-acre campus sits within the single-gated, one-mile Ring of Isengard, with 1,500 structured parking stalls, restored gardens and water features, and entitled development pads for an owner who measures returns in Ages, not quarters.

IN SUMMARY

It was the seat of power once. The seat is open.

TENANT OVERVIEW

The Orthanc is leased to seven tenants across six complementary industries — sovereign wealth, professional services, life sciences, consumer products, logistics, and communications infrastructure — with no single sector representing a concentration risk and no two major expirations falling in the same year. The weighted average lease term of 8.1 years is anchored at the long end by the Palantír Network’s thirteen-year infrastructure commitment and underpinned throughout by investment-grade and treasury-grade covenants. The result is a granular, durable income stream with staggered rollover, embedded mark-to-market upside, and a single full-floor spec suite available on Floor 2 — the building’s only near-term leasing opportunity.

ANCHOR TENANT

Erebor Holdings

Sovereign Wealth

Floors 3–8 · 78,000 SF

21.4% of NRA · Expiry Year 9

The building’s anchor, Erebor Holdings is the sovereign investment vehicle of the Kingdom under the Mountain, chaired by Thorin III Stonehelm. The firm manages one of the largest reserves of gold and precious materials in the known world — a balance sheet, in the most literal sense, backed by a mountain. Erebor has honored every financial obligation in full since the recovery of the Mountain, a covenant the rating agencies recognize at the highest grade. Its 78,000-square-foot commitment across six contiguous floors runs through Year 9 with 3.0% annual escalations and sets the credit tone for the entire rent roll. Tenants of this quality do not relocate casually; dwarves, as a rule, stay where they have dug in.

OFFICE TENANCY

Istari Advisory Group

Strategy & Management Consulting

Floors 21–25 · 65,000 SF

17.9% of NRA · Expiry Year 7

Istari Advisory Group is a senior strategy partnership whose principals are, by long-standing reputation, among the wisest counsel in the West. The firm advises sovereigns, kingdoms, and closely held houses on strategy, succession, and crisis — engagements that have, on occasion, spanned Ages. It is known for its discretion, for a certain gravity in the boardroom, and for arriving at the appointed hour precisely when it means to. The partnership occupies 65,000 square feet across five floors through Year 7 at 3.0% escalations and, following an amicable separation from a former principal, maintains a clean and well-capitalized practice. Rated A+.

The Council of Elrond LLP

International Arbitration & Advisory

Floors 26–29 · 52,000 SF

14.3% of NRA · Expiry Year 10

Occupying the building’s premier upper floors, The Council of Elrond LLP is a multi-party arbitration and advisory practice with few peers in the realm. The firm is best known for convening adverse constituencies — Elves, Men, Dwarves, and others rarely seated at the same table — and guiding them to consensus on matters of consequence, including the disposition of at least one singularly difficult asset whose resolution is still studied today. Founded by its eponymous principal, who has since retired over the Sea, the practice is led by an established bench of partners and carries an AA rating. Its 52,000-square-foot lease extends through Year 10 with 3.0% annual escalations.

Athelas BioSciences
Life Sciences & Pharmaceuticals
Floors 9–12 · 52,000 SF
14.3% of NRA · Expiry Year 8

Athelas BioSciences is built around a proprietary botanical compound with a documented, centuries-long record of efficacy in acute and trauma care — particularly against conditions that resist conventional treatment. Long dismissed in some quarters as a common weed, the compound’s clinical value is now well established, and demand for it has historically risen in precisely the moments it is needed most. The firm’s lab-and-office build-out across four floors represents a substantial tenant investment, making it a sticky, capital-intensive covenant unlikely to relocate. Athelas occupies 52,000 square feet through Year 8 at 3.0% escalations. Rated A.

Longbottom Leaf Co.
Agribusiness & Consumer Products
Floors 16–18 · 39,000 SF
10.7% of NRA · Expiry Year 6

Longbottom Leaf Co. is a vertically integrated agribusiness and the category leader in premium leaf — a consumer staple with a loyal, multi-generational following across the Shire and well beyond. As a staples business, it lends the rent roll a measure of counter-cyclical stability; demand for its products has proven notably resilient regardless of conditions in the wider realm. The company also maintains a flagship supply relationship with the Galenas lounge in the building’s amenity concourse — a convenient, if unsurprising, arrangement. Longbottom leases 39,000 square feet through Year 6 at 3.0% escalations. Rated BBB+.

Grey Havens Logistics
Maritime Freight & Logistics
Floors 13–15 · 39,000 SF
10.7% of NRA · Expiry Year 5

Grey Havens Logistics is the West’s preeminent operator of maritime freight and passenger departures, managing the realm’s principal western port and its specialized terminal. The firm’s core route is unusually defensible: it faces no competing carrier, its departures are one-way by design, and its customers do not return to shop the market. Under long-tenured management, it has run continuous operations from the same facility for an Age. The company leases 39,000 square feet through Year 5 — the building’s nearest-term rollover, and a clear mark-to-market opportunity — at 3.0% escalations. Rated BBB.

Palantír Network
Communications & Data Infrastructure
Floors 19–20 · 26,000 SF
7.1% of NRA · Expiry Year 13

Palantír Network is the realm’s sole provider of instantaneous, line-of-sight communications, operating a network of linked seeing-stones that connect every major seat of power in the West. In addition to its 26,000 square feet of office space, the company operates the on-site Palantír Data Vault within the tower’s secured subterranean works. Its lease runs through Year 13 — the longest in the building — anchoring the back half of the weighted average lease term and underpinning the durability of the income stream. Following a well-documented misuse incident under prior building ownership, all network access is now subject to rigorous usage governance and independent oversight. Mission-critical, infrastructure-grade, and prohibitively expensive to relocate. Rated A-.

LEASING OPPORTUNITY

Available

Floor 2 (Spec Suite) · ±13,000 SF

The building's single vacancy is a full-floor spec suite delivered in turnkey condition. At 96.4% in-place occupancy, it represents the asset's only near-term lease-up — offering an incoming owner immediate, accretive upside without the carrying drag of broader vacancy.

TENANT DIVERSIFICATION

Together, the roster delivers a granular, predominantly investment-grade income stream diversified across six industries, with no single tenant exceeding ~21% of NRA, no two major expirations in the same year, and a weighted average lease term of 8.1 years backstopped by treasury-grade (Erebor) and infrastructure (Palantír) covenants at either end. It is, by design, a rent roll built to last an Age.

PROPERTY OVERVIEW & HIGHLIGHTS

The Orthanc is a ±365,000-square-foot, ±500-foot Class A office tower standing at the center of the secured ±500-acre Isengard campus, within the Ring of Isengard at the Gap of Rohan. Raised by the masons of Gondor and recently repositioned to institutional standard by Treebeard Capital, the asset pairs a structure of genuine permanence with current building systems, native realm-wide connectivity, and a turnkey amenity program. It is, in both senses of the term, a landmark.

THE STRUCTURE

The Orthanc is a single architectural object: four piers of many-sided stone fused into one monolithic mass, rising ±500 feet to a crown of four horns. The material — a black, glass-hard stone of Númenórean manufacture — is, for all practical purposes, indestructible. It does not burn, weather, spall, or crack, and it has been tested, on the record, by fire, by siege, and by a coordinated assault that left the surrounding works in ruins and the tower itself entirely unmarked.

For an owner, the implications are straightforward. The building has no envelope to maintain, no façade to recommission, and no roof to replace — in this Age or, on current evidence, the next. The structure that protects the asset is also its single greatest source of capital savings, and the foundation of the Built to Last an Age thesis that runs throughout this offering.

BUILDING SYSTEMS & CONNECTIVITY

The repositioning brought the tower’s systems fully current without altering its character. A new bank of high-speed passenger lifts now serves all thirty floors, supplementing the original ceremonial stair. Power and central plant occupy the former forge level below grade — infrastructure the prior owner sized, generously, for heavy industrial load, and which now carries modern office and data demand with substantial headroom.

Connectivity is native. The building is a node on the Palantír Network, providing instantaneous, line-of-sight communication to every major seat of power in the realm without reliance on any third-party carrier — a redundancy and security profile no conventional building can offer.

REPOSITIONING & CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS

Treebeard Capital acquired The Orthanc out of distress and invested approximately M22.0 million repositioning the asset to institutional Class A standard. The scope was comprehensive and is now complete; the building requires no near-term capital beyond routine operations.

Capital Improvement	Investment

Life-safety, security & Ring perimeter systems	M1,500,000
Total Repositioning Investment	M22,000,000

FLOOR PLATES & STACKING

The tower offers ±13,000-square-foot floor plates — efficient, column-light, and well suited to both full-floor and divided occupancy. Floor 1 houses the lobby and amenity concourse; Floors 2 through 29 are office; and Floor 30, The Crown, is given over to an observation deck and sky lounge with unobstructed views across the Gap of Rohan to the Misty Mountains and the eaves of Fangorn. A detailed stacking plan and typical-floor layout appear in the Floor Plans section.

PARKING & THE SUBTERRANEAN WORKS

The former pits, shafts, and caverns beneath the tower — once given over to industry — have been remediated and reconfigured into 1,500 stalls of secured, structured parking, a ratio of approximately 4.1 per 1,000 square feet that is rare for an asset of this stature. The same secured levels house the Palantír Data Vault and the building’s central plant, with all access controlled from a single point at the Ring.

THE CAMPUS

The Orthanc stands alone at the center of a ±500-acre walled campus enclosed by the Ring of Isengard — a continuous stone curtain roughly one mile across, with a single controlled entrance. The grounds have been fully restored by Fangorn Landscaping into mature gardens, tree-lined approaches, and a network of recovered watercourses. A hard perimeter, a single gate, and a mile of setback together deliver a security and privacy profile no conventional campus can replicate.

- 96.4% leased to a diversified, credit-backed roster on an 8.1-year weighted average term
- ~M22.0M repositioning complete — no near-term capital required

AMENITIES

OVERVIEW

The repositioning introduced a full-service amenity program built to the standard of the realm's leading office towers — anchored by a signature restaurant, a private lounge, a thirtieth-floor observation deck, and the restored grounds of the campus itself. The program is operated and managed in-building, requires no tenant subsidy, and is a meaningful driver of both tenant retention and rent premium.

The Merry Halfling

Restaurant · Market · Catering — Amenity Concourse, Floor 1

The building's signature food-and-beverage venue, The Merry Halfling holds a prominent position on the amenity concourse and keeps to the full hobbit schedule of daily meals — seven, by tradition — and is therefore open, and serving, very nearly all of the time. The concept spans full-service dining, a grab-and-go market and deli, and private event catering, with a menu built on hearty, familiar fare and locally sourced provisions. For tenants, it functions as the building's living room; for the leasing program, it is a demonstrable retention asset.

Galenas

Private Lounge — Amenity Concourse, Floor 1

Adjacent to The Merry Halfling, Galenas is a private lounge finished in leather, dark timber, and the building's signature black stone. It offers a curated selection of premium pipe-weed and fine spirits in a discreet, members'-club setting, with dedicated ventilation throughout and private rooms available for meetings of a more confidential nature. Its premium leaf is supplied directly by Longbottom Leaf Co., a tenant several floors above — an arrangement of considerable convenience to both parties. Reservations are advised.

The Crown

Observation Deck & Sky Lounge — Floor 30

Crowning the tower within the four horns of its summit, The Crown is a private observation deck and sky lounge reserved for tenants and their guests. Full-height glazing affords unobstructed, panoramic views across the Gap of Rohan to the Misty Mountains, the plains of the Mark, and the eaves of Fangorn. The space serves as a tenant lounge by day and a premier venue for private dining and events by evening — by some measure the most distinctive entertaining space in the region. There is, quite literally, no higher address.

Fitness & Wellness

Amenity Concourse, Floor 1 · and the Campus Grounds

A full fitness and wellness center is provided on the concourse, outfitted to current institutional standard with strength and cardio equipment, studio space, and locker and shower facilities. The restored grounds extend the wellness offering outdoors, with walking and riding paths threading the gardens and the recovered watercourses of the campus.

Conferencing & Concourse Services

Amenity Concourse, Floor 1

The ground-floor concourse consolidates the building's shared services: a flexible conference and event center, a staffed concierge and reception, secured access control, and tenant storage. The configuration lets tenants host and convene at scale without dedicating premium upper-floor area to occasional-use space.

The Grounds

The Isengard Campus

Restored by Fangorn Landscaping from a century of industrial use, the campus grounds are now among the most mature landscapes in the realm — formal gardens, tree-lined approaches, and a network of recovered watercourses fed by the very waters that once cleared the site. Within the security of the Ring, the grounds give tenants a rare measure of green space, privacy, and quiet found at no comparable business address.

AMENITY SUMMARY

- The Merry Halfling — signature restaurant, market & deli, and event catering
- Galenas — private pipe-weed and spirits lounge with confidential meeting rooms
- The Crown — 30th-floor observation deck and sky lounge with panoramic views
- Fitness & Wellness Center — full institutional-grade facility with studio space
- Conference & Event Center — flexible shared conferencing with full concierge
- Restored Campus Grounds — mature gardens, walking and riding paths, watercourses
- Secured, single-gate campus — privacy and access control across ±500 acres

LOCATION & POINTS OF INTEREST

The Orthanc occupies a commanding position in Nan Curunír, the vale at the mouth of the Gap of Rohan — the single most important east–west corridor in the western half of Middle-earth. The Gap is the natural passage between the northern and southern reaches of the continent, carrying the movement of people, goods, and capital between Rohan and Gondor to the east and the lands of Eriador to the west. Few locations in the realm command comparable strategic reach, and none pair it with an asset of this quality.

Access & Connectivity

The campus is served directly by the Great West Road and sits immediately north of the Fords of Isen, the principal crossing of the River Isen and the historic control point of the entire corridor. Regional access is excellent by road and river; realm-wide connectivity is, uniquely, instantaneous — the building's node on the Palantír Network provides direct line-of-sight communication to the great seats of power, Minas Tirith among them, with no intermediary.

Workforce & Demand Drivers

The immediate trade area draws on the Riddermark of Rohan — a stable, well-governed realm whose capital at Edoras lies a short ride east. Rohan offers a deep and renowned labor base, particularly in logistics, husbandry, and the movement of goods, and its demand for a modern, institutional-quality business address has, until now, gone substantially unmet. The Orthanc is positioned to capture it.

Points of Interest

Fangorn Forest — the doorstep amenity. The realm's preeminent old-growth forest adjoins the campus to the east. Permanently protected, it secures the building's eastern outlook against any future development, functions as a view and wellness amenity, and is the home territory of the campus's own landscape stewards, Fangorn Landscaping.

Helm's Deep & the Glittering Caves of Aglarond — regional anchor. The great fortress of the Hornburg and the celebrated Glittering Caves lie a half-day's ride south. Now home to a thriving colony under the Lord of the Glittering Caves, the Caves have become a leading cultural and tourism destination, drawing visitors and investment across the Westfold.

Edoras & the Golden Hall — government & labor. The capital of the Mark and the seat of King Éomer sits a day’s ride east. As the center of Rohan’s government, commerce, and renowned workforce, Edoras is both the corridor’s principal demand driver and the Orthanc’s primary labor shed.

Lothlórien, the Golden Wood — the prestige benchmark. Beyond the Misty Mountains lies the realm’s most storied and exclusive address — the established standard against which trophy value in the West is measured, and a famously selective market. Its enduring reputation anchors the high end of the regional hierarchy the Orthanc now joins.

Rivendell (Imladris) — heritage & culture. A historic center of learning, counsel, and arbitration in the northern vales, and the ancestral home of The Council of Elrond practice now resident at the Orthanc. A reference point for pedigree across the realm.

Minas Tirith — the seat of power. The capital of the Reunited Kingdom and the seat of the King lies far to the southeast — yet sits, functionally, next door: the Orthanc’s palantír provides instantaneous, direct communication to the White City, a connectivity advantage no other building can claim.

LOCATION HIGHLIGHTS

- Commands the Gap of Rohan — the principal east–west corridor of the western realm
- Direct frontage on the Great West Road, immediately north of the Fords of Isen
- Adjacent to Fangorn Forest — a permanently protected eastern outlook
- Deep Rohan labor base at Edoras, a day’s ride east
- Prestige regional context — Lothlórien, Rivendell, and Helm’s Deep within the realm
- Instantaneous palantír connectivity to Minas Tirith and the great seats of power

FLOOR PLATE & STACKING PLAN

Overview

The Orthanc stacks to a deliberate logic. The amenity base and anchor credit occupy the lower floors; the diversified office roster fills the midrise; the marquee professional-services tenancy commands the upper floors; and The Crown caps the tower. The single available suite sits immediately above the lobby on Floor 2 — a visible, accessible lease-up opportunity that an incoming owner can capture without disturbing the established tenancy above. With ±13,000-square-foot plates throughout, the building accommodates both full-floor users and divided multi-tenant configurations with equal efficiency.

Typical Floor Plate

The tower delivers efficient, column-light floor plates of approximately 13,000 rentable square feet, organized around a central core that consolidates the lift bank, egress stair, and mechanical risers. The configuration maximizes usable perimeter and gives tenants flexible, largely unobstructed floors that subdivide cleanly for multi-tenant use or open up for a single occupier.

A defining feature of the repositioning was the introduction of full-height curtain-wall glazing set within the original stone piers — preserving the tower’s monolithic silhouette while flooding the floors with natural light and delivering panoramic outlooks that become uninterrupted, 360-degree views on the upper floors. Generous ±14-foot floor-to-floor heights allow for finished ceilings well above market standard.

Notes

Floor plates and the stacking exhibit are illustrative and not to scale; final areas subject to verification by survey. The Crown (Floor 30) and the Lobby & Amenity Concourse (Floor 1) are common amenity areas and are excluded from rentable area. The Palantír Data Vault and central plant occupy the secured below-grade levels alongside structured parking.

MARKET OVERVIEW & COMPARABLES

Submarket Overview

The Orthanc anchors the western Middle-earth office market at the Gap of Rohan — a region defined, above all, by scarcity. No institutional-grade tower has been delivered in the western realm in living memory, and none is in planning; the materials, methods, and craft required to build at comparable quality departed these shores an Age ago. The result is a market with effectively no new supply and a deep, structural flight to quality.

Demand fundamentals are favorable and improving. The peace established across the Reunited Kingdom has restored trade along the east–west corridor, drawn enterprise back to secure and well-connected addresses, and accelerated the consolidation of tenants out of older, exposed, or industrially compromised stock. Trophy-tier vacancy is low and tightening, net absorption is positive, and rents in the top tier continue to advance — conditions that favor the owner of the region’s single irreplaceable asset.

Market Fundamentals at a Glance

- New institutional deliveries: none in living memory; none planned
- Trophy-tier vacancy: ~5% and tightening
- Net absorption: positive, led by flight-to-quality consolidation
- Top-tier rent trend: advancing
- Replacement cost: effectively unquantifiable, and far in excess of current pricing

Distressed & Legacy Assets

For context, the region also holds several of the realm’s best-known distressed and legacy assets. Each underscores both the scarcity of stabilized product and the cost of mismanagement:

- Barad-dûr (Mordor): a total loss. The improvements were removed in a single, comprehensive event, and the site remains in remediation. Land value only; not financeable.
- Khazad-dûm / Moria (Misty Mountains): the realm’s largest and longest-running vacancy, spanning Ages. Prior reclamation efforts were unsuccessful, and a single legacy tenant issue is understood to remain unresolved. Extraordinary scale; significant due-diligence considerations.

Against this backdrop, a fully remediated, fully stabilized trophy carrying no legacy issues is a genuine rarity — and the distinction is the entire point.

Market Positioning

The Orthanc is offered at m461 per square foot and a 6.25% going-in capitalization rate — within the range set by recent trophy sales, and at a meaningful discount to the capital-market assets of Minas Tirith and Lothlórien, despite offering comparable construction quality, superior connectivity, and in-place stabilized income. Most tellingly, the basis sits far below any conceivable replacement cost: the Property’s monolithic Númenórean construction cannot be reproduced at any price, the means having departed these shores long ago.

In a market defined by constrained supply, a durable flight to quality, and a deep bench of cautionary distressed assets, The Orthanc represents the rare opportunity to acquire stabilized, irreplaceable trophy product at a basis the market is unlikely to offer again this Age.

Sale Comparables

Recent investment sales of trophy and near-trophy assets support the Orthanc’s basis of m461/SF at a 6.25% going-in capitalization rate.

Property	Submarket	Sale Price	RSF	M/SF	Cap Rate
Tower of Ecthelion	Minas Tirith	m214,000,000	412,000	m520	5.50%
Caras Galadhon	Lothlórien	m149,000,000	301,000	m495	5.75%
The Last Homely House	Rivendell	m92,000,000	209,000	m440	6.00%
The Hornburg	Helm’s Deep	m118,000,000	281,000	m420	6.50%
Meduseld	Edoras	m96,000,000	240,000	m400	6.75%
The Orthanc	Gap of Rohan	m168,000,000	364,000	m461	6.25%

Takeaway: The Orthanc prices within the established trophy range and at a clear discount to the capital-market assets of Minas Tirith and Lothlórien — despite comparable construction, superior connectivity, and fully stabilized, in-place cash flow.

Lease Comparables

Recent leasing across the realm’s premier addresses brackets the Orthanc’s in-place average of m48.00/SF and m52.00/SF market rent comfortably within range.

Property	Submarket	Tenant	RSF	M/SF	Term
Tower of Ecthelion	Minas Tirith (Gondor)	Office of the King’s Steward	41,000	m58.00	12 yr
Caras Galadhon	Lothlórien	Galadhrim Heritage Trust	28,000	m55.00	15 yr
The Last Homely House	Rivendell	Imladris Lore & Archives	22,000	m50.00	10 yr
Meduseld	Edoras (Rohan)	Riddermark Logistics Authority	35,000	m45.00	8 yr
The Hornburg	Helm’s Deep	Aglarond Cultural Foundation	30,000	m43.00	10 yr
The Orthanc	Gap of Rohan	In-place / Market	13,000	m48 / m52	8.1 yr WALT

Takeaway: The Orthanc’s market rent sits mid-range against the realm’s trophy set — above the Rohan and Westfold assets, below the capital-city and Golden Wood addresses — leaving credible room for mark-to-market growth as leases roll.

CONFIDENTIALITY & DISCLAIMER

This Confidential Offering Memorandum (the “Memorandum”) has been prepared by Mithril Real Estate Advisors (the “Advisor”), as exclusive advisor to Treebeard Capital (the “Seller”), and is furnished solely for the use of qualified parties in considering the potential acquisition of The Orthanc and the Isengard campus (the “Property”). It is provided on a strictly confidential basis and is intended for the recipient alone.

Confidentiality

By accepting this Memorandum, the recipient agrees, as a binding obligation, to hold its contents in strict confidence; to use it solely to evaluate the Property; and to neither reproduce, distribute, nor disclose it, in whole or in part, to any person other than those advisors and representatives with a need to know who are themselves bound to these same terms. The obligation of confidence is not lightly given, and the recipient is reminded that an oath, once made, is expected to endure. Should the recipient decline to pursue the opportunity, this Memorandum and all materials derived from it are to be returned to the Advisor or destroyed by means of the recipient’s choosing.

No Representation or Warranty

The information contained herein has been compiled from sources believed to be reliable. While care has been taken in its preparation, neither the Advisor nor the Seller makes any representation or warranty, express or implied, as to its accuracy or completeness, and no liability is assumed for errors or omissions. The recipient acknowledges that the Property has passed through periods of varied stewardship, and that records of older provenance may be incomplete. The recipient is expected, in the manner long counseled by the Wise, to rely solely upon its own investigation, inspection, and independent verification of all matters material to its decision.

Projections & Forward Statements

Any projections, pro formas, returns, and underwriting assumptions set forth in this Memorandum are estimates only, prepared for illustrative purposes and based on assumptions that may not prove correct. They are not a representation of future results, a guarantee of performance, or, it should be plainly stated, a prophecy. Actual results will vary, and the recipient should form its own conclusions as to the reasonableness of every assumption. Connectivity figures relating to the Palantír Network describe present capability only; the Advisor does not warrant the content of any transmission, the Stones being known, on occasion, to show more than was asked of them.

Reservation of Rights

The Seller reserves the right, at its sole discretion and without notice, to withdraw the Property from the market, to reject any or all expressions of interest or offers, to negotiate with one or more parties at any time, and to terminate discussions with any party at any time. No obligation, of any kind, shall arise on the part of the Seller or the Advisor by virtue of this Memorandum or its delivery until a definitive written purchase and sale agreement has been executed and delivered by all parties, and then only to the extent expressly set forth therein.

Not an Offer

This Memorandum does not constitute, and shall not be construed as, an offer to sell or a solicitation of an offer to buy the Property. Any such offer or solicitation shall be made only by definitive agreement.

A Seat of Power, Repositioned.
